

- We implement Economic MPC for supply chain systems after a short review of the economic MPC closed-loop stability theory.
- We propose a novel multiobjective cost function that considers both economic cost and risk (modeled as penalty for deviations from safety stock)
- We provide an example of integrating control theory and scheduling method by identifying terminal constraints that ensure recursive feasibility for a scheduling problem.